Course and Faculty Evaluation Policy
Revised date: 06/24/2015

The David Geffen School of Medicine at UCLA requires all students to evaluate their educational experiences throughout all four years of the medical school curriculum. The data collected is used in the aggregate to evaluate courses, curricula, and faculty. The data are then reported to course chairs for the use of improving teaching and courses.

For the pre-clinical years evaluations must be completed within two-weeks from the release of final exam scores. For the clinical years students must complete evaluations within two-weeks from the end of the clerkship or elective rotation. Students are notified via their mednet email account of evaluation deadlines.

It is expected that evaluations will be completed with honesty and integrity. Comments denoting constructive criticism as well as positive recognition are appreciated.
